OLYMPIC THEATRE.—A lively piece, in three acts entitled Taming a Butterily, and adapted from the French by Measrs. Daly and Wood, was played at this establishment for the first time last night. Though the piece has the smallest possible amount of story, it seems to be nons the worse for that. It is particularly rich in amusing situations and smart dialogue, and had a decided success. The

WHE ALMON.

The sackles from beginning to end, with true Gallic lustice. The advantage are groces use; the dialogue is lively; the piot, though the first interesting; and the moral, gimmering the content of the conten

ATLAS.

Atpoinually droll in situation: and, on the whole, a most successful jumbing of the most laughable features of quasiconsumit gailantry, well worthy of the hilarious recoption which it inst with even on a first night.

Of course the play has a run before it, or at least it should have if there's any taste for a good sharp satiric merrimenremaining in the city.

DALLY-NEWS. The disingues are sprightly and well written, and the humor freek, and in many instances sparking. The costumer and account were brilliant and are becoming a marked feature at this theatre. The house was crowded by a fashing play.
